Luxury Residential Rooftop Pools That'll Make You Forget You're Still in Manhattan

As New York simmers under a relentless heatwave, the true heroes of summer are finally having their moment: rooftop pools. In a city that thrives on vertical living, these elevated escapes are no longer a mere luxury, they're essential sanctuaries. Rising high above the asphalt jungle, outdoor pools offer relief from the heat and deliver postcard-perfect skyline views, seamless indoor-outdoor living, and the kind of chic ambiance that transforms an ordinary dip into a stylish urban experience. From the Financial District to the Greenpoint waterfront, here's a look at NYC's most enviable new residential outdoor pools redefining summertime in the city.

The Dupont: Greenpoint's Sky-High Oasis

Brooklyn's Greenpoint neighborhood has steadily transformed into a sought-after enclave for luxury living, and The Dupont is a shining example of its evolution. Developed by Rockefeller Group in partnership with Park Tower Group, this elegant new rental rises from the Greenpoint waterfront with a promise of panoramic escape. At its summit – soaring 38 floors above the neighborhood – the heated outdoor pool claims the title of the tallest in the area. With unobstructed vistas of the East River and the iconic Manhattan skyline, the pool deck at The Dupont feels more like an elevated resort than a residential perk. Whether residents are floating peacefully in the water or lounging with a cocktail on the sun-warmed deck, the experience is infused with an air of effortless sophistication. It's a magnet for summer moments and Instagram-worthy views, wrapped into one enviable amenity. In a city where personal space is a commodity and comfort must be carved out of the concrete, these new residential outdoor pools offer a break from the heat and embody the luxury of time well spent; sunset swims, skyline conversations, and cool breezes far above the noise below.
